

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a method of modifying a surface. The method may include introducing a liquid to a first cluster generation site. The liquid includes an oxidizing agent, such as hydroxylamine. The liquid is subjected to electrical forces higher than a surface tension of said liquid to prepare a first plurality of clusters. Clusters of the first plurality of clusters are impacted upon the surface.